

APA: In-Text & at Works Cited Listing

To appropriately cite and use a source in APA style one must provide a parenthetical citation in the body of the paper as well as a full citation corresponding at the Works Cited List.

Here's an example of using an article from a periodical:

In Your Paper:	At Your Works Cited List:
Research indicates that there is a correlation between perpetrator's hypo, or, stunted, emotionality and their violent offenses (Soo, Miller, and Moon, 2004, p. 1). Additional evidence ...	Soo, J., Miller, H., & Moon, J. (2004). Exploring the forensic use of the emotional recognition test (ERT). International Journal of Offender Therapy & Comparative Criminology 48 (6), 664 - 682. doi: 10.1177/0306624X04266278

More examples of citing In Your Paper:

If you include the year and Author's Name as part of your narrative:

In her landmark 1997 study Brenda Logan indicated that incidents of schoolyard bullying were greatly increased in classrooms that use corporal punishment (p. 17).

If you "directly quote" someone (use direct quotes sparingly):

"Schoolyard bullies grow out of classrooms, and environments, of violence" (Logan, 1997, p. 11).

More examples of At Your Works Cited List:

Citing an article from a database:

Author's Last Name, First Initial. (Publication Year). Title of article. Title of Journal, # volume number (# issue number), #page - #page. doi: # Digital Object Identifier number OR Retrieved from http:// the journal's web address (you may have to Google the title).

Citing an article from a printed journal:

Same as above, omitting "Retrieved from," but keeping the doi if available.

Citing a book:

Author's Last Name, First Initial. (Publication Year). Title. Publication City: Company.